He was a right-handed batsman and a right-arm medium pace bowler. Williams' career began with Sussex County Cricket Club in 1964, making his debut for the Sussex Second XI that season. In 1965 he made his first-class debut for Sussex, appearing against Cambridge University at the County Ground, Hove. He made six further first-class appearances in 1965, all coming against Oxford University, the county of his birth, Middlesex, Gloucestershire and Lancashire. He made no further appearances for Sussex, although he did play two matches for the county in 1967. He also appeared in two matches for a combined Minor Counties cricket team in 1967, against Middlesex and Lancashire, as well as for an invitational Northamptonshire team in 1969. After playing Minor counties cricket for the Minor Counties in 1969 and 1970, Williams joined Bedfordshire in 1971, making his debut for the county in a Minor Counties Championship match against Hertfordshire. He made six further Minor Counties Championship appearances for the 2d92ce491b
