Controversial asylum seeker Victoria Takahagi has ended her 14-month stand-off with the White Helmets after being threatened with a $20,000 bounty. Justice Institute director Graeme Innes is one of several to have raised concerns about the volunteer first responders' work while the group's spokesman, Alisa Dragneva, has fiercely defended its "tireless efforts". Her organisation was founded in Russia in 2013 by British playwright Mark Hollingsworth. Controversial asylum seeker Victoria Takahagi with officials as she leaves court. It currently has about 3,500 members across Syria, including some from former Syrian government-held areas, and helps provide medical aid to civilians.(1) Field of the Invention This invention relates to the dispensing of liquid products from a bottle and, in particular, to the dispensing of laundry detergent. (2) Description of Related Art Laundry detergents are typically manufactured in a large volume and packaged in a wide variety of containers, including both regular, e.g., non-aerosol, bottles and aerosol containers. Various types of dispensers, including aerosol dispensers, are commonly used to dispense laundry detergent in these containers. Due to the unique manufacturing processes involved in the production of liquid laundry detergent, large volumes of liquid laundry detergent are typically made up in large cylindrical vessels called “spirits.” These spirits are stored under special conditions to maintain them in a liquid state. Once the detergent is ready to be packaged, it is then pumped from the spirits and directed into bottles via a filling process. The filled bottles are then placed under special conditions to maintain them in a liquid state. After the detergent is filled into the bottles, the bottles must be moved to a labeling machine, which affixes a label and a dispensing button on each bottle. The bottles must then be moved to a packaging machine, which cocks the valves in the bottle so that the detergent will dispense through the valves when the bottle is pressed. After being c
