Q: Windows10X - Syncing Files to An Android Phone I am having the following problem: I am trying to sync files from my mobile device (Nexus7), to a Syncapp folder on my Computer. My mobile device is able to synchronise with the Syncapp files quite well, so my question is, how do I connect my device with my PC (I already have Syncapp installed on my PC)? I am trying the following: Open the Syncapp folder on my PC Right-click on the.epub folder in the Syncapp folder Select Connect as Android Device and choose my phone Success! I did a lot of research but have not found any good solution. I also read that you can use the Android File Transfer, but I have not been able to get the folder to show up in the File Transfer window. Edit: I updated my Android version to 6.0.1, Android SDK Manager can connect without any problems but Syncapp can't detect my phone. A: The first issue was a wrong version of Android. I just ran update to 8.1.0 and Syncapp now can detect my phone. However, I still don't have any idea how to use File Transfer with my PC. It seems that it has to be installed manually and there are no instructions for this on their support page. About Me Saturday, 570a42141b
