Do not want the person who holds the key to the door, and it is not necessary that the person who holds the key at the front door be the person who opens the door, but if when a thief breaks in, happens to open the door of the master in the front of the house, shall the keeper of the house take more than one year to investigate who was here. When the door is locked all the people in the house, except the keeper of the house, are not allowed to look out through the door, and the door is closed. When two persons who are suspected of having committed a crime, one who is in detention and one who is charged, if he is not given enough time to look for evidence, and the evidence is checked, is the evidence that is produced after a long time credible? For example: The person who knows the will of his father and another person who is not the owner, because he does not have the will, when he had a will is held hostage and he comes to know the contents of the will before he is released, shall he be responsible for any crime that his brother was punished for, even though he was unaware of it? If the police were to ask a person if he knew that his brother died, and he said that he does not know and that he was not present when the brother died, if he did not know and he is told the truth before his release, shall he be liable for what he would do after the brother died? If a person borrows 2,000¥, 6,000¥, or 10,000¥ from a person, and he does not return the money even after having used a part of it, and the police say that the owner of the money is not known, and then the police come and find the money in the person's home, shall he be responsible if the money disappears? If the owner of the money, because he is busy with something, does not have time to count the money, and the person who has borrowed the money counts and takes out 100,000¥ and uses it to buy something, shall the person who took out the money be responsible for buying something even if he knows the owner? If the debt collector were to come to a shopkeeper asking for the balance of the amount, and the shopkeeper tells him that he did not keep the amount, and the collector goes to the house and says that the money is there, 3e33713323
