This gives you a beautiful application to manage, to replace system or utility applications. Little by little you will learn to manage a command line, to have a different vision of life. These commands can be used directly from the terminal or can be the basis of a library in a programming language. If you are not interested in the script itself, you can easily bypass this page to launch the program directly. In the examples, we use the --help parameter in order to help you to understand the format of the command. We start with the documentation of the --help parameter. If we only change a little of the parameters and we forget to give a command line, we will have an error message like this. The difference between man and info command is the man we can be used by our keyboard for some information, and info we must use our mouse or a phone to take information. A man page contains the documentation of the parameters that can be passed to the command. When you want to see information about a specific parameter, you must enter it on the command line like the parameter --help. And now, we will see a small example. ## 3 1 2 3 ## script 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 25 26 27 28 29 30 31 32 33 34 80eaf3aba8
