Pages Thursday, January 23, 2013 I'm having some sort of major bizarro dream tonight, but I'm still not sure what it means. I think it's some sort of premonition of something that will happen later on this year. Anyway, for now I'm going to leave you with one of my favorite photographs from the early days of my husband's job. He was brand new, and he had just started work in my high-drama department. We were both fresh out of graduate school and... oh, let's just say that our relationship was very rocky for awhile. He walked into my office with this book. Without thinking, I snatched it out of his hand and opened it on my desk. Then, as if the Universe was giving me that "everything happens for a reason" signal, I pulled out the pen I'd been using the whole time we'd been married. I held the pen in my hand and looked up at my husband. The look on his face was enough to make me feel like our relationship was about to turn around. Friday, January 10, 2013 I was looking at the gun today, and I'm not sure which I find more disturbing: the gun itself, or the fact that I have such an obvious, repulsive, memorable logo on my gun. The gun looks pretty good - I like the brown color - but there's something about the logo that really makes me gag. And I've been thinking about that logo in connection to lots of things recently. For example, I just got a new, very pretty pen (which I hope to tell you about soon). But I kept thinking about the logo on that pen, and remembering how I felt when I first saw that pen (on a TV show that I was watching). I was thinking about how ugly the pen was, and how ridiculous it was that I was liking this pen just because of what was on it. I think the story of the pen is pretty much the story of the gun logo: pretty, but ugly. Who would have ever thought that a logo that goes "epp" would become so recognizable. And I think that, in a lot of ways, that's the whole story of my life. I didn't even realize it until a few years ago, but when I was in elementary school, my life really was an ugly story. I didn't even

Q: If $\sum_{n=1}^{\infty} \frac{c_{n+1}}{b^n} < 1$, then $\sum_{n=1}^{\infty} c_n$ is finite. I want to prove that if $\sum_{n=1}^{\infty} \frac{c_{n+1}}{b^n} < 1$, then $\sum_{n=1}^{\infty} c_n$ is finite. I am trying to do it with induction on n , but haven't succeeded yet. A: Observe that $\sum_{n=1}^{\infty} \frac{c_{n+1}}{b^n} = \sum_{n=1}^{\infty} c_n \frac{b-1}{b^n} = \sum_{n=1}^{\infty} \frac{c_n}{b^{n-1}} (b-1) = \frac{b-1}{b-1} \sum_{n=1}^{\infty} \frac{c_n}{b^n} < 1$. Thus we are done since we can apply the Cauchy criterion of convergence. MPPT Modular Plug & Play Charger The Modular Plug & Play Charger is an easy to install, plug in module for application specific on-line charging. The charger accepts a range of DC outputs which can be selected as needed to power and charge the host vehicle battery, or can be adapted to provide an external charging input to charge a range of off-vehicle devices. The Modular Plug & Play Charger is the ideal solution for fleet operators who need to supply a range of dedicated devices, such as a mobile phone charger, 12 volt DC, and 24 volt DC, without the need for a large, single point of failure component. This solution also enables a range of unique charging options such as Li-ion battery charging, M-way battery charging, and external batteries wired into the vehicle charger. Originally released in 1969, the film is "a first rate example of a fantastic and lyrical fantasy film made in England's finest period." It stars Ray Winstone, Oliver Reed and Maggie Smith, the latter in
